Edit the profile and add a custom image To receive and send messages, the application is divided into four main sections: the chat, the status bar, the settings, and the media. For the chat, there is an in-box chat, a favorite chat, a chat window, and a text box. How it works The LAN messaging client is connected to a local network and a list of other chat users is maintained. Each user is represented by a nickname and the identity of the partner can be viewed at any time. Users can send each other photos and files, send one-time messages, or set up a chat for video conferencing. Each chat window is a round window that contains all of the chat logs. The image below shows an example of a conversation.

How to use it As mentioned above, in order to send and receive files, the LAN messaging client is divided into four sections: the chat, the status bar,
